ABOUT THE BOOK

This is a 3-volume set of oversized books that capture beautiful traditions in Asia that are rarely seen outside their homes. The author spent 50 years travelling to the ends of the road in 35 Asian countries to record the costumes, architecture, festivals, and traditional lifestyles that are becoming rarer by the day, or have already vanished. The 9,000 images in Vanishing Asia range between Turkey and Japan, from Siberia to Indonesia, and everywhere in between. Each one of its 1,000+ pages is uniquely designed. These large pages are crammed with design ideas, stunning costumes, astounding cultural scenes, lifestyle inspirations, and a fantastical armchair journey. There is, honestly, no other book like it.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Kevin Kelly is Senior Maverick at Wired magazine, which he co-founded in 1993. He has written several books on the future of technology. His most recent, The Inevitable, was a New York Times bestseller. He runs a popular website, podcast, and newsletter that recommend cool tools. He is co-chair of the Long Now Foundation which has been building a 500-foot tall clock that will tick for 10,000 years inside a mountain in Texas. In addition to his day job he has traveled in 35 Asian countries photographing the disappearing cultures. Kelly resides in Pacifica, CA.
